PERSONS ADVERTISED FOR.

DONALD MACLEAN, who emigrated from Newcastle-on-Tyne to Melbourne, in the ship CLIPTON, November 18th, 1849, has not been heard of since the beginning of 1865. He was educated at Dr. Bruce's academy, Newcastle-on-Tyne; would now be in his twenty-ninth year; was six feet six; and was, at date of last account, Edward River, on his way to Sydney. Information would be thankfully received by his mother, Mr. MACLEAN, care of Mr. Russell, editor of SCOTSMAN, Edinburgh, Scotland.

PHILIP GARCIA, son of Abraham Garcia, late of Prince-street, Hanover-square. Left England in the ship YIMMER, Captain Twenty, August, 1852, for Sydney. If alive he is nearly twenty-eight years next April, and he will hear of something considerably to his advantage, by applying to his relatives in England, his grandmother having died about three years after he left London.

bers of interests, the power of which was so great as to make any estimate of estimating, and the validity of whose charges we are quite unable to measure. We have seen transactions described to us by persons equally worthy of credit, and equally above suspicion of wilful misrepresentation in colours so different from each other that we can only recognise them as attempts to describe or to invent. It is not possible to see how the war has prevented the conclusion of peace, or how an interest in the continuance of hostilities was responsible for the escape of the 200 native men. These are questions which we ought to have tried to be able to answer, but we can as yet give no opinion by which we should be bound to be bound. The Press of this country has been very careful in giving expression to the various reasons which are so difficult, but we remark that whenever such an opinion is required, however guardedly, a voice from the colony from its friends in this country has almost invariably been found to deny our conclusion. There is, in truth, many a false friend, and we are of opinion that in many cases and intersections of opinion, that of a suspect, hardly possible to say anything concerning the views of the colonists, of the Governor, of the Press, or of the Home Government, which is absolutely true or absolutely false, and which is absolutely true or absolutely false.

Zealand might not contradict with, at any rate, considerable show of plausibility.

we are told this morning on the authority of a colonial statesman, that the same policy was followed both in New Zealand and in England, that we attribute to the colonists a desire of carrying the war for selfish motives, for the sake either of the plunder and rapine, or of the humilation and destruction of the native race, that we are antagonists, and of the consolidation of the soil acquired by the sword among themselves, to them gross injustice. We are told also that colonial statesmen are nothing but avaricious and greedy, that they are the cause of the war, and that it was begun by their avarice whom we naturally look upon as the means of checking the selfishness and cupidity of the natives, and of saving the natives from those who seem bent on its destruction. We hold that it was not the Colonial Ministry, but the war himself who occasioned and began military operations, and that it was only through the medium of a Government that the Army was sent to New Zealand. He is accused of repeated loss of faith, which have prevented the natives reposing any confidence in him, and it is said that he has been locked up in the Tower, the Minister of New Zealand, has really been the principal cause of its present troubles. Before we if these highly colored statements we should desire that they should come to the test. There are many persons in New Zealand, and in England, who are called New Zealand War Party, and Peace

There is besides, the Governor. None these three powers has the slightest chance in either of the other two. The War and the Peace Parties, the one of them, are extremely opposed on local politics, and each apparently is on the worst terms with the Governor. From the War Party came the Ministry, of which Sir George Grey is the head, and which he is keeping on in a provisional till the meeting of the Assembly. The latter, singular statements of which we have just been giving attention, comes from a distinguished member of the Peace Party. The War Party, of course, is of peace, agreeing in nothing else, are at any agreed in this—to throw the whole blame of war and everything connected with it on Sir George Grey. Those who are opposed to the war, deride the political opponents of the war, to throw all the blame for the present disastrous of affairs on the representative of the Home Government. Then, the War Party, who are it is that has suspended the ordinary animosity local faction and united the most irreconcilable differences of opinion in condemnation of the Minister's real policy. The question is, however, unable satisfactorily to answer it. No doubt war appears in a very different light to the calumniators, who are told that henceforth its expense must what would be borne by the country. In such a it becomes a great object to show that England, is about to throw on her colonists the burden of the war, really and not only in appearance. principal cause of that war herself. We cannot help thinking that the despatch of Mr. Cardwell, in which the ministry that so large a portion of the expenses of the military proceedings is to be borne by the colonies, is a very judicious and a very liberal as with regard to the policy of the war itself. which a year ago seemed a very good speculation, has now lost almost every one of its moving interests, and also seems to be more and more exclusively confined to the Northern Island. Thither the military supplies, where the money is spent, to settlers in that island the conquered lands must be given to the inhabitants of the Mother country, except from the natives of their own islands, and without any fear of injury from the natives of the Northern Island, naturally at the proceeding from a very different point of view. The most important part of the burdens of the war, of the of the taxation, of the debt, and the financial embarrassment, but they have nothing to gain in expenditure except its trifle, which is a which is a trifle, which is a trifle, which is a consideration does explain the strange divergence on matters of fact, but it does explain and fully account for the not divergence of opinion. The colony would not be allowed to interfere in its local affairs. If it is to go on, whoever is to bear the burden of it, it is to be administered by the Government of New Zealand, and under the control of the responsible Ministers. We must make up our minds to one of two courses. The first course, he tells us, is of two courses. The first course is that the Government must absolutely abstain from all interference with the Colonial Government, leaving them to do as they please. The second course is that the Government must take the Northern Island into our hands, govern it, and for governing it as we like, forming the Middle Island into a separate colony. He thinks the colony would decline the offer of our troops on the ground that there is no war, and that, in the terms of the agreement, we are to pay a large portion of the expense. He is logical to propose to us that we should keep our troops in New Zealand at the expense of this country, and should allow the Colonial Government to do as they please; but he is quite content we should withdraw them.

His speech is plain speaking, and we are very much inclined to think that, upon the supposition that we are to have to pay for the troops employed to fight her battles, we must resort to one or two of these alternatives. We hold it to be our duty to be able to pay for the troops employed, and we are responsible for us to keep our troops in New Zealand at the expense of the New Zealand Government, and we are not to be able to claim a potential voice in the service in which they are to be employed. We must then either rate the island which is the seat of war from the of New Zealand, and thus get rid of the col-of local or colonial authority, or, since we can-reconcile a constitution which we have given because colonists will not use it exactly as we wish, we it withdraw our troops from a place where our state power to control them is not admitted. We so far as we can see, no other alternative, and there is not think the nation would long hesitate between the effless offer of a mountainous island, with a war led up into it by way of mortgage, and the leaving to colonial authorities the management of a war, cerely the most important of their own affairs. We well content that Imperial control should cease h Imperial interference, and truly wish that the peomen who make the suggestion could take the respon-of the feelings and wishes of the united colonists New Zealand, instead of a particular party and at most, a particular island.

The revenue accounts for the year and quarter ended December 31st have been published. They are most satisfactory. The total revenue for the year is £70,125,374, against £70,433,626 in the previous year. This decrease of £308,252 in the face of the reductions of taxation which have taken place is remarkably small. The principal decrease is in the property-tax, which has yielded £1,807,000 less than in the previous year. The other hand under which there is a decrease is customs—to the extent of £886,000. The reduction of the income-tax and tea and sugar duties fully account for these. All the other sources of revenue, such as income—that of the excise no less than £1,261,000. The quarter ended December 31st was £11,605,064, being £249,470 less than in the corresponding quarter of the previous year. This decrease is in customs, stamps, and property-tax, in all of which there were reductions.
